Dear Chair Young and Members of the Board:

California's state agencies should be leaders in complying with federal and state pollution laws that protect San Francisco Bay and other waterways. But the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) has failed for years to comply with the Clean Water Act and its stormwater permit requirements to control trash.

More than two years after a formal Notice of Violation, Caltrans still has not produced an acceptable plan to halt its illegal pollution. We appreciate the Board finally proposing a Draft Order requiring Caltrans to take specific trash control measures, but that order must be significantly strengthened to reduce damage to the Bay. We urge you to revise the draft order to require:

- Accelerated installation of full trash capture actions that intercept trash from an additional 1,000 acres each year to achieve 6,000 acres of treatment by 2024, and treatment of all significant trash generating areas – no less than 8,820 acres – by 2028,
- Submission by Caltrans of a detailed trash generation map and explicit work plan within 3 months of permit adoption, and commitment of budgeted funds to implement the order,
- Cooperative agreements with municipalities to fund operation and maintenance of trash capture devices in addition to installation.

These changes are essential to protect the Bay's ecology and recreational value, achieve timely compliance with pollution laws, and hold Caltrans accountable for the same trash control requirements you impose on cities and counties. The Board should vote to approve the Order with these changes.

Thank you for taking these crucial actions to stop pollution of the Bay from Caltrans roads.

Sincerely,

CALTRANS is an out of control nuisance to all Californians. Trash, escaping roads and winding up in water holding bodies is just another examples of their arrogant, 'COULD CARE LESS' attitude. Issue a strong order that makes them comply to Federal and State Clean Water Act requirements.

NOV's are great ways to get government agencies such as CALTRANS to act. Set up a program where they are fined each and every day they are out of compliance. With all the money they are stealing from California motorists with their 'EXPRESS LANE' program, they should be able to handle some stiff NOV charges.

Sincerely,
John Holliday
