

Hello;

Residents use 20% of the distributed water, the other 80% goes mostly to agriculture.

I find it outrageous that the almond and pistachio barons who planted their groves on land reclaimed from the desert continue to get huge supplies of water through their Westlands Water District and other entities. One almond requires a quart of water.

You should start your further restrictions with the big almond and pistachio growers, not the residents.

Jerry Terstiege
Foster City