5. The disposal site slopes generally to the northeast and is relatively flat except for a prominent rocky hill located near the center. The site is underlain by alluvial deposits, consisting mostly of sand and gravel. This soil type has a high infiltration rate (0.6 inches to greater than 2.0 inches per hour). The average annual evaporation is 86 inches.
6. Depth to ground water is about 270 feet. Nearby wells report the following salinities:
