Hi Wayne,

We agree with your suggestions. How about 9-11am on August 9th at the City of San Diego, Chesapeake office?

As for attendees, we'll likely have the same 5 LDW representatives attending and maybe a couple other key people that participate often. Does that sound ok with you?

Thanks again,
Christine

Hi Christine,

I'm glad your workgroup was able to get a better understanding for how the new permit might function, and hopefully a clearer understanding about what we are trying to achieve with the new permit.

As for the next meeting, August 9 looks like it should be okay, though it would be better in the morning than in the afternoon.

At this next meeting we would prefer not to review and comment on any specific proposed language. Instead, we'd rather have you walk us through alternative concepts or ideas that you think would be equally or more effective than what we currently have proposed in the administrative draft. We can then provide you some feedback on whether those alternative concepts or ideas would meet our needs and expectations, and maybe help you identify any shortcomings or gaps that you can try to fill in. Or, we could participate in a brainstorming session if you would like to throw around some ideas.

Also, I'm not sure it is necessary to have the entire workgroup there. We have found that a smaller group of meeting participants tends to produce much more candid and free-flowing discussions. As with most meetings of the size we had, there were about 5 of 20+ people doing most of the talking and the rest did not really participate in the discussion. We prefer to have everyone in the room participate in the discussion.

If you would still like to have the meeting on August 9, please let us know a time and place so we can mark it on our calendars.

Thanks,
Wayne

Laurie/Eric/Wayne,

Thank you very much for a productive discussion today. I think everyone went away with a better understanding for how the new permit might function.

To follow-up with the additional meeting suggestion, we would like to know if you would be able to meet with us again on August 9th. We'd likely use the same format, but this time we'd like your feedback on potential language that we'll draft up. Would an hour or so on August 9th work for you?

Thanks,
Christine
