

LATE COMMENT

From: Peter M. Olsen [<mailto:pmo1938@gmail.com>]
Sent: Monday, March 16, 2015 12:59 PM
To: Townsend, Jeanine@Waterboards
Subject: Salton Sea

Dear Jeanine,

I don't know if you are like the other yokels there in Sacramento or not? The Salton Sea is drying up fast and no politician or community leader gives a hoot. They do care if a couple of 'Dunkin Donut' cafes are built along the shore, but nothing else, CA is in a drought and nobody seems to care.

To build a canal or install a pipe to the Sea of Cortez is something that can't be done because the yokels don't know how. Can you imagine a canal or pipeline to the Salton Sea and then the building of several desalination plants to help with the water shortage? No, I guess not? Have you ever been to the Salton Sea? I doubt it!

The only people or outfit that will benefit from a dried up sea will be the NASCAR! They can then race their electric cars on the salt flats and can save on the mileage/electricity to and from Salt Lake City.

Did you know that the Salton Sea is about 98 feet lower than the Sea of Cortez? We have those dumb and stupid politicians who want to build a pipeline from Canada and they know full well that the only thing that will go through that pipeline is a bitumen grade shale oil residue that has very little potential to refine for automobiles. HA-HA. I guess stupidity can't be fixed!

Peter M. Olsen
(760) 567-3974

P.S. Try my novel: www.amazon.com/dp/1492114103