Responsibilities under the Proposed Regulation:

Critical Area: 1) All landowners and water suppliers would be required to respond to any informational order(s) issued by the State Water Board, AND 2) all water users would be subject to enhanced water conservation measures, unless their sole supply of water comes from a water provider whose supply is from a source outside of the four priority tributary watersheds. You can contact your water provider to determine whether the water they provide exempts you from the enhanced water conservation requirements of the emergency regulation.

Priority Watershed Area: All landowners and water suppliers would be required to respond to any informational order(s) issued by the State Water Board. Water users within the priority watershed area, but outside of the critical area WOULD NOT INITIALLY BE required to implement enhanced water conservation measures, but may be subject to the requirements at a later date if the Deputy Director extends the requirements to other portions of the four watersheds after consultation with the California Department of Fish and Wildlife or the National Marine Fisheries Service. Water users are encouraged to conserve water.

Outside Areas: Water users outside the four priority tributary watersheds are not subject to the Russian River Tributaries Emergency Regulation, but are encouraged to conserve water during the ongoing drought.

The Russian River Tributaries Emergency Regulation and associated Enhanced Water Conservation Measures are in addition to other conservation measures that are required for water suppliers and individual end users throughout California.
