

Eric Stein is the head of the Biology Department at the Southern California Coastal Water Research Project (SCCWRP), where they work on developing tools and approaches to improve monitoring and assessment of aquatic systems in coordination with the federal, state and local agencies.