

Additional 20x2020 References

The California Public Utilities Commission has provided this list of references, used to produce CPUC input on the draft 20x2020 Water Conservation Plan:

The Future Is Drying Up, (October 21, 2007) Jon Gertner, New York Times Magazine

Water Crisis, (August, 2008), Peter Rogers, Scientific American Magazine

Water Crisis: Myth or Reality?, (2006) ed. Peter Rogers, Harvard University

Not A Drop To Drink, (2007) Ken Midkiff, consultant to EPA, New World Library

Drying of the West, (February, 2008) National Geographic Magazine

California Water:2020, Peter Gleick, et al. Pacific Institute

California Water 2030, (2005) Peter Gleick, Pacific Institute

The World's Water 2004-2005, Peter Gleick, et al., Pacific Institute

Dry Spring, (2008), Chris Wood, Raincoast Book Dist Ltd

Barriers To Conservation Implementation, (August, 2008), Urban Water Institute Annual Water Conference, Tom Ash, HydroPoint, Inc.

Moving Toward Water Use Metrics, (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, David Broustis, Seattle Parks & Recreation

Baselining Water Consumption in Single Family Homes in Las Vegas, (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, Alfredo Fernandez-Gonzalez, Univ. of Nevada

Applying Marketing Strategies to Water Conservation Outreach, (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, J.C. Davis, Southern Nevada Water Authority

Metropolitan Water District's Commercial/Industrial/Institutional Water Conservation Program (CII), (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, Bill McDonald / Metropolitan Water District of Southern California

Incorporating Conservation Programming in Long Range Water Resource Planning, (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, Fernando Molina, Tucson Water Dept.

Water and Energy Efficiency Program for Commercial Industrial and Institutional Customer Classes in Southern California, (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, Amy Campbell, US Bureau of Reclamation

How to Develop a Conservation Master Plan, (October, 2008), WaterSmart Innovations Conference, Gus Meza, West Basin Municipal Water Dist, & Tom Chesnutt, Consultant