

Good afternoon Jessica. For what it is worth I feel that maybe the state mandate should restrict the usage per capita not by % reduction. It seems to me that when you have places that are only using around 50 gallons a day per capita and being asked to reduce even further and then have others that are in excess of 600 gallons. With a 36% reduction these homes are still allowed to use 384 gallons a day per person. How is that fair? Well that's my 2 cents, have a good day.
