

Dear Chair Felicia Marcus and Board Members,

I don't understand people who don't clean up after themselves.
I don't understand people who don't properly recycle and compost.
I don't understand people who leave appliances/electronics on.
However, all these combined do not come close to how much
I do not understand people who leave water running.

Today we are facing a major problem. The world is slowly using up its supply of fresh water. We take from rivers and water sources without thinking about the consequences downstream. This has led to low water flows in our rivers, impeding fish passage, concentrating pollutants, raising water temperatures, decreasing dissolved oxygen, and so on and so forth.

Water is an important source of life for us and it's become evident with the lower flows that life is all interconnected. We can make a difference — we can cut back on drinking the straw at of the rivers without impacting our lifestyles. Without losing much we can gain a lot. Let's restrict our impact on the river!
